This allows operators to have a single integration point for all their gaming needs, which simplifies the process, and improves the player experience.

Pragmatic Play: Controversies

In 2024 Pragmatic Play started receiving criticism for what players perceived as wildly exaggerated advertised potential, with some games claiming max wins as high as 180,000 times the bet. Suspicions were raised in the community when the games failed to generate wins anywhere near the stated potential.

In 2024 Bigwinboard publicly criticised Pragmatic Play for using controversial streamer Roshtein in one of their Facebook promos to advertise a new game. The promo was later removed, but Pragmatic Play continued to receive heavy criticism in the community for their seemingly close ties to fake money streamers.
